Questions 31 & 32: 閱讀測驗

Local markets are interesting places. People go to markets early in the morning to buy fruit, vegetables, meat and fish. People also love local markets because the food is very fresh and cheap. Fruit, vegetables and meat often come from the farm the same day they are sold. The fish, too, often come to the market straight from the fishing boat. But the market doesn't sell the same things every day. Some fruits and vegetables are only available during certain seasons.

At the market, vendors sell chicken, pork and beef. Just tell the vendor what kind of meat you want. Then say how much you want, and they will prepare the meat for you. If you don't want to cook, you can also buy cooked food at the market. Then you can take it home and eat it.

Do you need any non-food items? You can find those at the market, too! You can buy toys or books there. Do you need some new clothes or new shoes? You can also buy those at the market. Many people like to shop at the market. They can buy almost everything they need in one place!
